

CROSS CULTURAL AWARENESS TRAINING CASE FOR EXCHANGE STUDENTS, 30-31 May, 2012

(Feedback)

“I liked this way of working very much. I do believe that at the Faculty of Economics there must be more practical work like this and less theory. If this is the way of work in Copenhagen, I will enjoy it very much, because it’s very different from the line of work in Ljubljana.”

“When we came to the workshop no one really expected to do school work (case studies). But after we divide into groups and start working on the case it got interesting, because we had to think about assignments, apply the theory into practice and think of solutions. I like this kind of studying, because you learn the most.”

“I like this kind of teaching method, the new concept of working in groups. It was challenging for me, because we analyzed company unknown to us with also different organization and intensive internationalization. We had an opportunity to know new people, start working with them without knowing them before. What could be done differently? I suggest more talks and debates among all students (not just the group) about the case.”

“I learn a lot of new things. I really like the way how we have worked this two days. It is also different that how we work and study in Slovenia. I like the idea that we can show our opinion and what we think about the case. The approach was really good. I like everything; maybe we should have a little more time for analyzing the case. Thank you for new experience.”

“I liked the relaxed atmosphere while doing the case study. I think that kind of learning is very proactive and interesting than just listening to lectures. The positive thing is this workshop was also doing a case, work with people I didn’t know before. I think it was a nice experience. I really have no idea how this workshop could be better, maybe if there were more groups it would be even more challenging. If professor on our faculty would be that relaxed and open to us as you were, it would be wonderful.”

"I was positively surprised with the work we did in the workshop. It was better than I expected. The type of work we did here is funny and interactive. I wish we had more of it at our faculty. It is also better for memorizing different theories by connecting them with practical case. I wouldn't change a thing (or perhaps less pages to read but that wasn't a problem anyway. Thank you!"

"I liked this workshop because I have learned different study methods, which are in my opinion better. I would, however, like to hear more about Danish culture and ways to behave when studying there. Thank you for a great experience and I am looking forward to see you again in Denmark."
